SAWYER BUSINESS FIRMS.

Teweles & Brandeis, Produce Buyers, Do a Big Business in This City. Owners of Large Warehouses and Valuable Dock Property. Olson & Forland, Dealers in Lumber and Building Material.

AMONG the best known business firms in Sawyer is that of Teweles & Brandeis, grain and produce buyers. Their business has brought them in contact with a large number of farmers, and during the years that they have been located in Sawyer have built up a business that speaks well for the firm. They also conduct the same line of business on the east side of the bay, it being in charge of Arthur Teweles, while the buying in this part of the city is looked after by Isadore Brandeis.

The company's property in Sawyer consists of a large elevator, dock property and large warehouses. The elevator has a capacity of 30,000 bushels of grain and is equipped with the latest machinery, which is run by an eight horse power Fairbanks-Morse gasoline engine. The elevator is equipped with a clipper cleaner and automatic scales, which are of great value in a business of this kind. The elevator stands 90 feet high, and is located where shipments can be made from it by either rail or boat. The firm makes a specialty of handling peas and thousands of bushels are shipped south each year, they being put up in bags and transported to the southern market by boat. The majority of the wheat, rye and barley handled by the firm is shipped south in bulk by rail, the cars being run to the elevator on a side track, where they are quickly loaded. Five men are generally kept employed about the elevator, and the handling of the grain is in charge of Jeff Teweles, an experienced man in that line of business.

The firm also own the old planing mill building on their premises, which they utilize as a place to sort and pick over their peas, there being twelve girls employed in this work during several months of the year.

ELEVATOR AND WAREHOUSES OF TEWELES & BRANDEIS.

The dock property owned by Teweles & Brandeis is situated at the foot of Maple avenue, and very convenient for the business interests of the city. At this dock all the boat transportation companies, that run into this port, stop, and a great deal of freight received and shipped over it. The dock has a frontage of 140 feet, and extends 150 feet out from the shore, the water being deep enough to accommodate the largest craft. Two large warehouses are built here, one at the end of the dock, 36x100 feet, which is used principally by Teweles & Brandeis for the handling of their peas, and the other, 45x110 feet connecting it on the west, and running along the south side of the dock, and used principally for freight brought in here by the transportation companies. The dock business is in charge of Halver Halverson.
